“ I was married to Art and loved him very deeply. Then one day he decided to just move on to another woman when I was not available due to my job. I talked to him the week before he died and he was very sorry for what he did. I truly wish that I could believe him.

“ My dear little brother, Arthur...not too long ago we talked about making plans to see each other. We also told each other we loved each other and always would. I reminded him of the little boy with a baby puppy in his arms, toddling around in Kingsville, who grew into a dedicated Marine and a fine man. As charismatic as he was handsome, Art never met a stranger, and he charmed women and men alike. He could charm our mother to where she forgot his teenage misdeeds, and ended up laughing with him: She adored him!

He was out of sight for many years, but never, ever out of mind. We were our mother's children, my sister, Diana, he, and I; fiercely independent, wandering spirits, always wanting to see what was on the other side of the "hill". We all went our separate ways, as most of us do these days, raising families, pursuing jobs and careers, and making our way in different parts of the world.

I love you, little brother, just as I always loved you, and admired your mettle! I know God wanted you home, and I know one very happy mother who was there to greet you as you entered A Beautiful World. Como dice la cancion: "Yo te extranare; tenlo por seguro"...

You left behind some wonderful memories, some beautiful children and grandchildren, and some very good friends. Rest in Glorious Peace. Your loving sister, Tina Adame Whitney, nephew Michael Whitney, Teri (Don), Ashley Yocum, niece/family.
