“ I've had the pleasure of meeting Mason through his beautiful mom, and what I know of him is that he was a quiet soul who smiled all the time. I would always tell him that he was a handsome young man. Knowing what I know about him and his family is that they loved him so much and wanted nothing but the best for him. May he rest in peace

“ Mason was a brother to me, someone I could always trust and rely on ever since he left it's felt like a part of me left with him.

“ I'm so glad I had the pleasure of meeting Mason and being around him him and my child were very close and they loved each other very very much every time I saw Mason he had the smile on his face because he was happy when him and my child were together. Mason was a loving, kind soul who felt things deeply and loved even deeper. When he was able to be himself, you could see how much happiness it brought him and the people around him.

No one should ever feel like they have to hide who they are or lose the people they love just to be accepted. Every child deserves a safe place to be their true self without fear or pressure.

His life is a reminder to all of us—listen more, love harder, and never make your child feel like they have to choose between being themselves and being loved. The sweet baby is in my heart forever as well as Caylen's. He will be forever loved❤️

He found real happiness in being loved and accepted for who he truly was, and that joy was something special to witness. No one should ever feel like they have to hide who they are or be separated from the people who make them feel safe and understood.

How incredibly insensitive of you to take the time to time and write for everyone who is grieving mason. I have know mason for 9 years and not once did he not feel loved or he couldn't express himself the way he wanted to. Trust me he expressed himself. For you to put the blame of this accident on someone else. You and your son need to reevaluate your life. LLM and god bless his soul. And may god be with his mom and Bobby and their family.

“ Meester Mason was loved by so many including myself. I am his cousin but he called me aunt critty and I have always thought of him as my nephew Meester Mason. God brought him through so many challenges and Mason was excelling in life before God took him home. I am so proud of the man he was becoming and of his mother who fought for him his whole life and showed him the light of Jesus. I will forever remember that little curly haired blue eyed boy who reminded me of a little cherub angel running around. I pray all who reads this turns to Jesus and lives for Him. He is the only way to eternal life and the only possible way to ever see Mason again because he had turned his life to God and was saved and baptized. May God bless you.

P.S. Hey Mason, save me a seat 😊 I will see you soon! Love you buddy, Aunt Critty! ❤️ 🙏

“ In Loving Memory of Mason Shane Reardin

There are moments in life that stop us in our tracks; moments that don't make sense, that don't seem fair, and that leave us searching for answers we may never fully understand. The loss of Mason is one of those moments.

Just days before his 21st birthday, Mason's life was taken in a tragic instant. A young man with his whole life ahead of him-gone too soon.

Mason was deeply loved by his mother, who fought for him from the very beginning. Her love was constant, unrelenting, and unwavering. Though life brought challenges and instability, that love never changed. It stood firm through every storm.

Like so many young people today, Mason's life was shaped by circumstances beyond his control. He grew up navigating a world that didn't always provide the guidance, structure, and example that every child deserves. And while it's easy for people to look at a moment and pass judgment, the truth is far deeper than any single event.

Mason was not defined by his final moments. He was a son. A young man. A life full of potential that had not yet been realized.

We remember a life that mattered.

We remember a young man who was loved.

We remember that behind every tragedy is a story-and behind that story is a human being.

We remember that this day comes for us all and we should all strive to make sure we can now follow Mason into Heaven.

To Mason's family-especially his mother-there are no words that can ease this pain. But know this: his life mattered. His story mattered.

And he will not be forgotten.

Let this not only be a moment of grief, but also a moment of reflection for all of us. If you are not ready to go be with Mason, it is time now to prepare.

Rest in peace, Mason.

“ My son Mason was precious in the sight of God and he was precious to me. ❤️🙏 He will be eternally loved and missed by me and his big brother Bobby. Mason loved his brother so much!! he made an impact on others and touched hearts with his kind, loving, gentle spirit. My son was saved and loved Jesus this gives me great hope!! the world was a better place with Mason in it. He was wise beyond his years and he had the ability to heal. He was truly My Buddy and truly a gift from God. I'm so thankful that God chose me to be his mother for 20 years. This was truly a blessing. I love you, son and Mama will see you again real soon.
